Dear friend,

We are spreading the vision to reach teens for Christ

Pastor Jose Delgado and his wife, Angie and Ann and I met in the city of Pucallpa in the jungle of Peru to attend the missionary field council meeting of two major North American mission agencies last month.

What a great time of deep, loving Christian fellowship we had among fellow gospel workers of like precious faith!

And it was our privilege to tell them about the work of Proclaim and offer to be an arm they need and can use for evangelism to teens.

How can other missionaries use Proclaim's ministry?

We want to be available to work side by side to help achieve their spiritual goals for the nation of Peru. One of their driving focuses is starting new churches in cities where the word of God is needed. We are eager to help with that. Proclaim can coordinate with them and hold events in high schools, pointing both students and their parents to faith in Christ and bringing them into contact with those local churches.

I was surprised how similar our plans for the future were. There is a united interest in reaching certain cities for Christ and in the possibilities of working together to grow ministry in Bolivia, and perhaps in other countries.

Keep praying, and see what God does when we work together for him

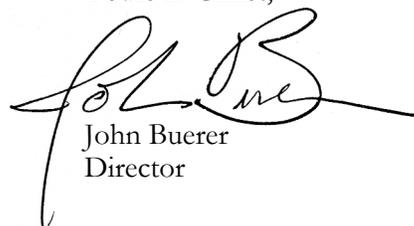

My father-in-law used to say the church board talked so much they thought they had actually achieved something! We are moving ahead to work together for the kingdom. Please pray with us as the number of opportunities grow, increasing our efforts to bring teenagers to the Savior.

We need you and every other team member to help make this a success

I thank God you are part of this team. If we ever needed you to pray with us for the Lord to lead, it is now. We will keep you informed of our combined projects so you and I can praise God together for what he does.

Thank you for financial support that makes this ministry possible. We are already facing increased demands financially as we move ahead to embrace new opportunities. Please pray earnestly about this that God will shower his blessings on us and bring partners on board who are passionate about winning the world for Christ. Thank you, and may God bless you.

Yours in Christ,

John Buerer
